

A patient story

Kristeen Family

The intensive care staff were great when Harvey was in intensive care with septicaemia. We went through a nerve-wracking time, especially when his ventilation tube became dislodged one night.

The consultant later told us that this accident might have happened because the tape securing his ventilation tube had become loose. She said that they would review this to ensure that it doesn't happen to other children in the future.