

Meeting the support needs of people with CRPS using the internet: A research study

Image from: <http://statproject.wordpress.com/online/>

We are looking for people with CRPS who would like to take part in a study exploring how and whether online forums can meet the support needs of people living with CRPS.

We are launching a private online forum that will be offered to members of CRPSUK. We want to see whether and how support develops in this forum and so from time to time will ask those using the forum to complete a questionnaire for us.

If you are interested in taking part in this study, or if you would like some more information about it please contact:
